Health Justice

Carrie Chapman, JD

Senior Director of Litigation and Advocacy

Legal Council for
Health Justice

Stutee Acharya joined Legal Council in September 2022 as a National Health Corps member to expand the HIV/AIDS program's capacity to remove health-harming legal barriers for patients at the program's medical-legal partnerships. She graduated from Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta, GA with a B.S. in Neuroscience, minor in Health and Medical Sciences, and a certificate in Entrepreneurship. During her undergraduate years, Stutee was a volunteer medical assistant at Urban Clinic of Atlanta and engaged in cellular immunotherapy research at Moffitt Cancer Center. She most recently worked as an emergency department scribe at Piedmont Atlanta Hospital. Stutee is passionate about reducing health disparities to achieve equity in health care.

As the Senior Director of Litigation and Advocacy, Carrie Chapman oversees litigation, legislation, and administrative advocacy at Legal Council for Health Justice. Carrie has extensive experience serving low-income people through litigation. She has litigated complex cases on the Medicaid program, education access for children with disabilities, immigrant access to benefits, and hospital charity care. Currently, she also serves as adjunct faculty at the DePaul University School of Law and the Loyola University Chicago School of Law.

Bradley Corallo, MPA

Senior Policy Analyst, Program on Medicaid and the Uninsured
KFF

Bradley Corallo is a Senior Policy Analyst with KFF's Program on Medicaid and the Uninsured (KPMU). In this role, he focuses on Medicaid eligibility and enrollment policies, as well as policies impacting Federally Qualified Health Centers and their patient populations. Much of his work draws conclusions from analyzing Medicaid administrative data and other federal data sources. Prior to joining KFF, Bradley worked as an analyst at the National Association of Community Health Centers. He holds a Master's in Public Administration from Virginia Commonwealth University and a Bachelor's in Sociology from James Madison University.

Leighton Ku, PhD, MPH

Professor and Director of the Center for Health Policy Research
The George Washington University School of Public Health

As a health policy researcher, a public policy analyst, and an advocate, Dr. Ku's career has been built around the effort to understand and improve access to affordable health care for vulnerable populations. Among his areas of expertise are national and state health reforms, Medicaid, the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP), immigrant health, prevention and health care financing and budgets, with an emphasis on strengthening the health care safety net. He has authored or co-authored more than 100 peer-reviewed articles and 200 other policy and translational health policy research reports. As a faculty, he has taught research methods and statistics at the graduate level for about 25 years. As a member of the community, he has helped develop and guide the District of Columbia's health insurance marketplace since 2012 as a member of its Executive Board.

Professor Ku joined GWSPH as a full-time faculty member in 2008, but he has held adjunct positions at GW's School of Public Policy and Public Administration since the early 1990s. During that time, he also served as a senior fellow at the Washington-based Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, which focuses on improving policies for low- and moderate-income Americans; as principal researcher at the Urban Institute; and as a policy and budget analyst for the federal Women, Infants and Children (WIC) nutrition program.

Jay Sicklick, JD

Deputy Director, Center for Children's Advocacy, Inc.

Director, Connecticut Pediatric Medical-Legal Partnership Project

Jay Sicklick began as a staff attorney at the Center for Children's Advocacy and founded the first collaborative Medical-Legal Partnership in the country in April 2000. Prior to this appointment, he served on the faculty of the University of Connecticut School of Law, where he held the position of Assistant Clinical Professor of Law, teaching lawyering skills, and social welfare law. Mr. Sicklick also served as a senior staff attorney at the Legal Aid Society's Bronx Neighborhood Office for six years, as well as a private practitioner in Boston. He currently holds the positions of Adjunct Professor of Law at the University of Connecticut School of Law, where he teaches courses in legal ethics and professional responsibility and Clinical Instructor in the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine. Mr. Sicklick is a graduate of Colgate University and Boston College Law School. He is the author of several publications, including Adolescent Health Care: The Legal Rights of Teens (5th ed), and has spoken at numerous conferences and hospital sponsored Grand Rounds on legal-health related topics.

Norma Tinubu, JD

Senior Supervising Attorney, Immigration
LegalHealth at New York Legal Assistance Group

Norma Tinubu is Senior Supervising Attorney with LegalHealth. In this role, she supervises the immigration practice of LegalHealth and provides guidance and supervision on changing immigration law, practice, and policy that affect their work with immigrants who are seeking access to health and lawful immigration status. Prior to joining LegalHealth, she was an attorney with the Gay Men's Health Crisis and provided legal assistance on immigration and New York State benefits to individuals living with HIV/AIDS. She has a J.D. from Touro Law School and a Bachelor's degree from Pace University.
